DEADLINE

Deadline for Submissions: March 15, 2024

GUIDELINES

- Work submitted for consideration may include the choreographer as a performer.
- University graduate-level students should submit under the 'Emerging Professional' category.
- At least one year of demonstrated post undergraduate choreographic work. The work you submit may be created on dancers ages 19 or older as part of a university and/or professional company, or on your own group of dancers ages 19 or older you have selected/hired.
- The work may be a duet, trio or ensemble. Solos will also be accepted, but work with multiple dancers is encouraged.
- New work is strongly encouraged, however it is not a requirement that the work be a premiere. It may be a work you created for another purpose at an earlier time. Dancers performing in the video submission should preferably be the dancers who will perform at the festival, however, this is not a requirement.
- The choreographer must provide their own dancers for the festival performance at their expense. Travel costs for the choreographer and dancers are the responsibility of the choreographer.
- Every effort will be made to provide sufficient rehearsal time prior to the tech/dress rehearsal. However, this cannot be guaranteed. The piece should come fully rehearsed.
- All production costs associated with the festival performance in Santa Fe are assumed by NCDP except costuming and props. All expenses related to costuming and props are the responsibility of the choreographer. Production costs are defined as theater rental, technical staff, and marketing.
- Dancers performing the work must be at least 19 years of age. Any exception must be granted by the NCDP Artistic Director.
- Dancers cast in the work ages 19 through 24, are strongly encouraged to enroll in the NCDP festival intensive as full participants during July 29 - August 4. A half scholarship will be offered to each dancer in the above age range. If additional support is required, the festival has a scholarship program for dancers having significant financial need.
